Key accounting considerations
Determine the role the municipality plays in a housing arrangement

Key consideration in determining accounting, is the role/capacity within which a municipality acts in relation to:

- Beneficiaries.
- Contractors/service providers (project manager or developer)

First step is to consider whether (a) there is a principal-agent arrangement, and (b) if yes, role is that of a principal or agent.
Is there a principal-agent arrangement

- 3 aspects need to be considered to determine if housing arrangement is within scope of GRAP 109:
  - transactions undertaken in terms of binding arrangement
  - 3rd parties with whom transactions are undertaken
  - are transactions undertaken on behalf of another entity
Is there a principal-agent arrangement

- Principal-agent arrangement exists for transactions with beneficiaries:
  - Binding arrangement
  - 3rd parties (beneficiaries)
  - Undertaking “transactions” on behalf of Dept
Is there a principal-agent arrangement

- For transactions undertaken with contractors and/or other service providers
  - principal-agent arrangement exists when municipality appointed as project manager
  - principal-agent arrangement does not exist when municipality appointed as project developer

- Assess each arrangement on its own
Municipality as project manager

- Is the municipality the agent or principal?
- Apply criteria in GRAP 109 to assess if agent:

  Does not have the power to determine the significant terms and conditions of transaction.

  Does not have the ability to use all or substantially all of the resources that result from transaction.

  Is not exposed to variability in the results of transaction.
Municipality as project manager

- Based on review of legislation, municipality acts as agent (will need to assess each arrangement).
- Recognise revenue and expenses incurred in executing transactions on behalf.
- HSDG not recognised as municipal revenue but recorded as liability.
- Principal account for revenue/expenses with 3rd parties i.e. grant and constructed houses during and after completion.
- No accounting for houses.
Municipality as project developer

- GRAP 109 not applicable as no principal-agent arrangement
- Municipality is contractor → GRAP 11
  - Recognition of grant received as contract revenue
  - Recognition of expenses incurred as contract expenses → amounts due and from provincial department of Human Settlements
  - No accounting for houses during construction or after completion
Other accounting issues related to housing
Other accounting issues

- Accounting for revenue received
- Accounting for land, infrastructure and other assets.
Accreditation or other fees

• Accreditation fee → formula used, based on service provided.
• Commission, administration or transaction fee
  – For undertaking transactions on behalf of provincial department
• Apply principles in GRAP 9
• If related only to construction → can apply GRAP 11
Accounting for land

- Principles from IGRAP 18 to assess control
- Right to direct access to land, and restrict or deny access of others
  - direct use of land’s future economic benefits/service potential to provide services
  - exchange, dispose or transfer land
  - use land in any other way to provide future economic benefits/service potential
- Conclude – Municipality loses control of land when it enters into arrangement with province
